

SENATOR WAY
(FORMERLY STOREY STREET)

Storey Street was discontinued by the City of Augusta on November 8, 2006 as a request from Packard Development for their project, Augusta Crossing. In September/October 2007, Packard Development approached the City of Augusta to change the name of the road known as Storey Street. Apparently as part of Packard Development's deal with the Senator Inn during the purchase of the Senator's back land, Packard was to name one of their roads Senator Way.

The road known as Storey Street would be the ideal road to name as Senator Way since it is the access for the Senator Inn. It was for this reason that Packard approached the City to request a name change. Since the City discontinued the road, it was now considered to be private. Because of this, the City did not have to formally vote for the name change as long as the E-911 addressing officer approved of the new name. The name was approved as Senator Way by the addressing officer.
